SUNDAY, JANUARY 24TH, 2016

THIS MORNING:

A preacher once quipped that North American Christianity is “a mile wide and an inch deep.” As North American believers, we have at our disposal more resources for spiritual growth than any other culture at any other time in history. Yet, despite all these resources, it seems that many church-going, professing Christians are content to play around in the kiddie-pool while a few others learn to swim in the deep.

But life has a way of flinging us into the deep end, doesn't it? Trials and temptations will come, and when they do, will we sink or swim? Much of the way we will handle the troubles of tomorrow depends on whether we are willing and committed to go deep in our walk with God today. But how does that happen? And what does it look like? Today we will gain some insights into this subject as we consider what the Apostle Paul wrote to the believers at Colosse about deepening their walk with God.
